Inclusivity in Education

Different Settings

- Promote a welcoming environment with artwork, posters, and books that represent different cultures and identities
- Provide varying classroom setups: group seating areas, quiet zones, and flexible seating
- If online, provide multiple ways to participate in the class: watch a video, read an article, and different layouts

Strategies and adaptations

1) Sensory tools and breaks

2)Task chunking - ADHD

3) Extended time on tests

4)Quiet zones /sesnory zones

5) Hands on learning

6)Recorded lessons

7)Designated movement. breaks

8) Enlarged fonts

Real world examples

- ensure that your curriculum includes a variety of voices, cultures, and perspectives so everyone feels seen
- know your students so that you understand everyones unique backgrounds and perspectives so that you're able to incorporate opportunities for students to safely share their life stories and perspectives with their peers.
- create a range of activities and materials that supports all learning styles
- flexible seating to accommodate different sensory needs that help students succeed

Resources and materials

1) accessible learning materials: books in braille, audiobooks, educational assistants for one-on-one support, captions, translators and visuals are all helpful tools to support students with various learning needs
2) helpful technology: text to speech devices and tablets that use symbols/pictures to communicate, captions, interactive learning games
3) other communications: sign language and visual schedules

Prioritize equity over equality
